

TERRELL MAKES REPLY TO GUNN AND MORGAN

Says Present Course of Study Was Prepared by Prof. Slaton

Editor Atlanta Journal: Permit me to re-echo to the editor of Messrs. R. J. Gunn and A. P. Morgan, in your issue of this afternoon concerning the course of study now in use in the Atlanta schools.

The publication of this card is the undoubted thing that has been done in the effort to oust Professor Slaton from his position as superintendent of schools, and it seems to me to be a very unfair effort to deprive an able and conscientious public servant of credit which is just his.

To make my rejoinder as brief as possible, I say this:

The present course of study for the Atlanta public schools was prepared by Professor William M. Slaton. It was prepared in the city of Baltimore, Md. It was approved by the stenographers in the office of the superintendent of schools of the city of Baltimore. It was presented to Professor Ducker of Johns Hopkins University for his criticism and he approved the same. It was submitted to Professor McKim of Columbia University, and he approved it, saying that no city in the United States had a better course. I repeated this statement when he was in Atlanta a few months ago. A copy of this course was placed in Major Gunn's hands by Professor Slaton upon his return from New York, and before the work of Miss Parrish, Miss Laura Smith and Major Gunn was done as mentioned in the card. Professor Slaton has in his possession a duplicate of the course, which may be seen by anyone.

What I have stated as to the preparation of this course of study was told by Professor Slaton at the teachers' normal in September, 1914, in the presence of Major Gunn, and he made no denial of the correctness of the statement at that time.

From a statement made with reference to me in the concluding paragraph of the card of Messrs. Gunn and Morgan, I infer that the thing they call a course of study, but which is usually called a syllabus or an outline, is the outlines for the first, second, third and fourth grades of the schools which was suggested to have been made by Miss Laura M. Smith, the primary supervisor, and the same for the fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh grades, which was supposed to have been made by Prof. L. M. Landrum. At least they were directed by the board of education, as I remember, to prepare the same. I am sure that that board of education, when Miss Smith brought in her report of an outline of syllabus on child development, published the statement as coming from me that I said the same was "junk." I denied making the statement and did it now.

I deny that Prof. Slaton had any knowledge of my intention to write anything on the subject of schools or that he appeared over my signature. I did not consult or obtain his permission. What I wrote was written on my own account and without consultation with any one. The first time Prof. Slaton saw anything about it was in any of these cards as after they appeared in print. I assume the sole entire responsibility for the card. Before writing this rejoinder I did not see Prof. Slaton for the purpose of checking up the statements of fact. He has not seen this card.

Yours truly,
W. H. TERRELL,
Member of the Board of Education for the First Ward.
Atlanta, Ga., May 29, 1915.

HANDSOME NEW BUILDING ERECTED ON CAMPUS OF BRENAU COLLEGE

LESLIE SOUTHWEST SIMMONS MEMORIAL, just completed at Brenau college, Gainesville, Ga., will be given over to the college Young Women's Christian association and other religious interests of the college. In the background of the picture, adjoining the new building, is Bailey hall, in which is situated the Brenau college auditorium.

Commencement Visitors Delighted With Classic White Structure Which Has Just Been Completed

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
GAINESVILLE, Ga., May 29.—Visitors to Brenau college, Gainesville, Ga., were greatly interested in a splendid new building which has been erected on the campus within the last year.

It is a memorial to the late Mrs. Leslie Southwest Simmons, wife of Dr. T. T. Simmons, whose death a short while ago saddened many friends and former pupils, and in recognition of her work along this line the building will be dedicated to the Young Women's Christian association of the college.

In addition to the L. W. C. A. office and assembly hall, the building contains rooms for the Young Women's Christian association, a library, reading room, a museum and a large room for recreation and play.

The building is constructed of cream-colored brick, with foundation and trimmings of Georgia marble, and its classic architectural lines, coupled with its contrast to the deep red tones of the other brick buildings, make it a very handsome addition to the college's fine group.

Brenau claims the distinction of being the first women's college in the south over one building to religious interests, and the faculty and students are very proud of it.

They are particularly kind for the building to be a memorial to Mrs. Simmons, who, though chiefly identified with music in her family connection with the college, was vitally concerned in the development of the college's Y. W. C. A. building.

MRS. NENA M. MEYERS, BRIDE OF EDWIN BONEY
The friends of Mrs. Nena M. Meyers and Edwin M. Boney will be surprised to learn of their marriage last evening. They left immediately after the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. L. O. Bricker, pastor of the First Christian church, for a trip east. They will visit Richmond, Washington and other points before their return to Gainesville, where they will be at home in the Gladstone apartments.

Mr. Boney is connected with the Empire Rubber and Tire company.

BABY BOY ARRIVES IN WILDER FAMILY
Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Wilder, of 157 Euclid avenue, announce the birth Saturday afternoon of a fine 8-pound baby boy.

Mrs. Wilder and the baby are at the Wesley Memorial Sanitarium, doing nicely, thank you, and the hundreds of friends in the nation picture and must be world of Mr. Wilder, who is president of the Automatic Player Piano company, are showing him with congratulations.

GEORGIANS TESTIFY TO MAYR'S REMEDY
Lives Redeemed and Fortunes in Health Are Recovered.

Most of the problems of health originate in the stomach. Most of these ailments can be cured. Thousands of people right in the state of Georgia are needlessly suffering from stomach troubles, while thousands of others have found health by the use of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. The first dose of this remarkable remedy is proof. Here are the words of two Georgians who have said it:

R. DUNCAN, 136 W. Peachtree St.
"I took one bottle of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy and it did me no good. I must continue the treatment."
SALIENTA FRANCIS, 55 La. France St., Atlanta, Ga.—"I have taken four remedies for five weeks. I feel like I hardly know my strength—my appetite is fine."
Mayr's Wonderful Remedy gives permanent relief to stomach, liver and intestinal ailments. Eat as much and whatever you desire. No more suffering after eating, pressure of gas in the stomach and around the heart. Get one bottle of your druggist now and try it on an absolute guarantee—if not satisfactory money will be returned. (Adv.)

RAILROAD MAN TAKES DOSE OF STRYCHNINE

After swallowing several grains of strychnine, E. V. Abernathy, 39 years old, an employee of the Atlanta and West Point railroad, was rushed to the Grady hospital Saturday night. The physicians there, after an examination, stated that he would recover.

The Atlanta Ad Men's club will hear an interesting address at their noonday luncheon on Thursday, June 3, 1 o'clock at the Wincoff Hotel, from Judge W. W. Tindall, of the Atlanta juvenile court. Judge Tindall will speak upon the work of the court, what it has accomplished, and the possibilities before it.

The Atlanta Ad Men are taking a deep interest in all movements involving the municipal welfare, and if there is any way in which they can do it, they are anxious also to lend their assistance to the work of the juvenile court.

The coming Chicago convention and other matters will be discussed at the meeting of the Atlanta Ad Men, which will be held at the Wincoff Hotel, Thursday, June 3, 1 o'clock. The Ad Men are working to the end of sending a large delegation as possible to the convention of the Associated Advertising clubs of the World, and the indications are that there will be two sleeping car full of them when the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis train pulls out for Chicago on Saturday, June 19, at 4:45 p. m.

GEORGIA PEACH WILL DEBUT DURING WEEK

Few Already on Market but General Movement Yet to Begin

The Georgia peach will make its debut this week, about the state and begin its march on the east and midwest during the coming week, according to an announcement made on Saturday at the office of the Georgia Fruit Exchange. Last week a few carloads of peaches were moved by fast express, but the general movement of the peach crop will not begin until the first week in June.

The prices for these first shipments indicate that the markets are in position to take and pay as good prices for high grade Georgia peaches this year as last year, provided they are marketed in normal quantities.

The problem now confronting the Georgia Fruit Exchange is that of distribution in order to prevent a glut on any one market, which would have a tendency to greatly reduce the prices of fruit in that market.

The exchange has just closed contracts with the leading independent growers and growers' association in Alabama, Tennessee and South Carolina, to market the peach crop in those states, as well as in Georgia, which will still further place the peach crop in a position to regulate the shipment of peaches, which will, it is believed, keep prevailing prices of peaches throughout the country such as to not a profit to the grower.

Advices received from Texas and Arkansas are to the effect that, under these states, also, will have a big peach crop. The Texas crop will be on the market at the same time as that from South Georgia, and the Arkansas crop at the same time as that from North Georgia. This means that the west will not take as many Georgia peaches as last year, but representatives of the Georgia exchange in the west will advise the Georgia exchange of shipments from Texas and Arkansas, and in this way slugging the western market can be avoided.

FRATERNAL LEADERS TO ATTEND DANIEL FUNERAL

Red Men and Odd Fellows Pay Last Tribute to Memory of Griffin Judge

More than three hundred Red Men and Odd Fellows of Atlanta will attend the funeral of Judge Robert T. Daniel, whose funeral will occur here at 3:30 o'clock.

With the Atlantians, who leave on a special train at 12:30 o'clock, will be William Brooks, of Chicago, Ill., Great Chief of Records of the United States for the Red Men; and William H. Hyeremason, of Nashville, Tenn., Past Grand Master of the Red Men. They arrived in the city Saturday afternoon and were met by Judge T. H. Jeffries, Judge George B. Johnson, Jesse B. Jones, J. T. Collier, Frank Smith and Charles J. T. Collier, who will accompany them to the funeral.

The funeral will be held in the open air in the yard of the First Methodist church, as no church in Griffin is large enough to seat the hundreds of friends who wish to attend the services.

Dr. J. M. Baker, of Rome, assisted by Rev. G. F. Venable, Rev. J. E. Sammons and Rev. J. E. Sammons, will officiate at the grave which will be in charge of the Odd Fellows, of which Judge Daniel was grand sire.

He found by careful observation that they too had a certain rhythm, and that if, instead of resisting them as he had been doing, he sought for and listened to their rhythm, they had a real sleep-bringing effect. Even the flapping of a curtain, so disturbing to many people, has a rhythymical quality if one will only look for it. This is the course that should be adopted by all who are troubled by noises at night.

Instead of becoming irritated at them and fuming over them, try to observe their rhythm. You will nearly always find it; and, having once found it, and listening to it placidly, you will pass into sleep without further effort.

This Week In Atlanta Movies

Attractive Programs Announced by Every Theater, With Serials, Features and Funny Films Predominating

TAKE a look over The Journal's Guide today and you will see some good things. To movie fans that read between the lines the announcement of forthcoming features for the week means hours of interest. There are stars and stars and laughs and laughs from the Grand out Peachtree to the Alpha at the other end, where Bob Leonard and Ella Hall are booked for a return.

Marguerite Clark is coming to the Grand again. The story is "The Pretty Sister of Jose," by Frances Hodgson Burnett, and this favorite of filmdom is cast for the leading role, that of a Spanish girl.

At the Montgomery the week's program includes "The Little Rebel," the famous war play in which William and Dustin Farnum starred. Blanche Sweet in "The Captive," Dustin Farnum in "Captain Courtney," and other good films.

The Strand announces Roy Norton's story, "The Plunderer," a thrilling western drama. Howard Estabrook in "Four Feathers," a war picture, and two Mutual Masterpieces.

The Alamo One has Charles Chaplin twice and a number of classy United films. Robert Warwick in "The Man of the Hour," Lionel Barrymore in "The Seats of the Mighty" and Wilton Lackaye in "The Pit" are among the features offered.

The Alamo No. 2 announces Wilhelm Meryk, a Broadway star; another episode of "The Goddess," and two Masterpieces, "The Outlaw's Revenge" and "The Devil."

"The Diamond From the Sky" is again at the Vaudeville Friday; and the big feature of the week at this popular theater is William S. Hart, Wednesday, in "The Conversion of Frosty Blake."

"Shattered Memories" is the name of the film in which Bob Leonard and Ella Hall, stars of "The Master Key," appear at the Alpha. It is booked for Monday. Decoration day. Another episode of "The Black Box" is shown that day and the programs for the rest of the week look good.

ELIA HALL AND BOB LEONARD RETURN TO ALPHA ON MONDAY. Atlanta movie fans will be delighted to hear that in "Shattered Memories" at the Alpha Monday, two popular stars of "The Master Key" will be seen again. Elia Hall and Bob Leonard.

"The Master Key" was one of the most popular serials ever shown in Atlanta, and it was Miss Hall and Leonard, their fine emotional acting and their magnetism, that made it so. Since the last episode was run they have been noticeably absent from the screen and their return in this new gold seal drama will create wide notice.

"Shattered Memories" is in three reels, the plot centered around Decoration day, which is May 31. The same picture appears at the Strand on Monday also will be shown. A thrilling Universal serial by E. Phillips Oppenheim. Episode eleven is entitled "The Heart's Vengeance," and shows Anna Little and Herbert Rawlinson in three scenes.

Two other great films are booked at the Alpha this week. Ben Wilson and Dorothy Phillips in "The Ladder of Fortune" Wednesday, and Violet Mersereau, a most beautiful of filmdom beauties, in "You Can't Always Tell," a two-reel Imp drama. Thursday. A cracking good comedy, "With Father's Help," featuring Billie Rhodes, is also billed for Wednesday.

Other good comedies at the Alpha are "Broken Hearts and Pledges," Black Mann, Tuesday; "Lacy Barflies and the Detective," a Powers farce, Wednesday; and "Many Crooks" with Lee Moran, Saturday.

Saturday is a red-letter day for another reason, for "Under the Crescent," the revelations of an Egyptian harem in film form, will be shown at the Alamo and William Dowling in the leads.

MARGUERITE CLARK AT GRAND PRETTY SPANISH FEATURE. Three of filmdom's biggest stars bring the Grand's latest attraction, the guetie Clark, Edith Storey and John Mason, the latter in his first film appearance.

The first two days, Monday and Tuesday, will bring Miss Clark and Storey, the widely loved star of them all, in the "Pretty Sister of Jose," a picturesque Spanish story staged in authentic locations, and adapted from the celebrated romance by Frances Hodgson Burnett.

"The Island of Regeneration," the immortal classic of fiction, written by "Crisis Townsend" Clark, will be the Grand's offering for Wednesday and Thursday. The picture is the most lavish creation of the Vitaphone studios, and required practically half a year in the making. Most of its scenes were staged in the tropics.

The star of "The Island of Regeneration" is the famous Edith Storey. The first screen appearance of John Mason will be witnessed by Atlanta picture lovers Friday and Saturday when the Grand presents the sensational dramatization of the famous stage actress, "Jim the Penman." The rapidly developing plot of the play has been well maintained, and even accelerated in the picture, changing the dramatic phases. Although John Mason's gifted portrayal by far outshines the gifted efforts of the supporting cast, which, by the way, includes an unusual number of silent stage and screen players, at least of whom are stars in their own right, their individual impressions cannot be overlooked. Frederick Perry as Captain Redwood in drawn in characteristic outline, making a vicious portrayal in strong lights and shades. Russell Dussart, as the malicious confederate of "Jim the Penman," plays with remarkable finesse on broad and subtle lines.

ROBERT WARWICK, BARRYMORE AND OTHER STARS AT VICTORIA. Such popular stars as Robert Warwick, Lionel Barrymore, and Wilton Lackaye, such well known stories as "The Seats of the Mighty" and "The Pit," such roaring comedies as the Key-stone comedy productions, such as this week's bill at the Victoria theater.

Robert Warwick is at the Victoria Monday in George Broadhurst's success, "The Man of the Hour," produced by the World Film corporation. The big act. The story is too well known to need a retelling. It is based on the election to the majority of the metropolitan of young Garrison and the pressure placed to lead him to effect a bill for the big "franchise" state.

Another big World Film feature is "The Seats of the Mighty," with Lionel Barrymore, at the Victoria Wednesday. One of the dramatic beauties and romance of Sir Gilbert Parker's famous novel of the French and Indian war, the story is of Robert Moray, the young Englishman entrusted with letters of Madame DuRoi to Louis XV, and is replete with the wild life, intrigues and light love of a century ago. Wilton Lackaye is the star in "The Pit," at the Victoria Friday. The feature is based on the last Frank Norris "Feverish drama" of the Chicago stock market plot of the play has been well maintained, and even accelerated in the picture, changing the dramatic phases. GILBERT D. RAINE HEAD IN CONTEMPT OF COURT

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 29.—(Associated Press.)—Gilbert D. Raine, publisher of the Memphis News-Scimitar, was in contempt of court when he published in his paper an account of Circuit Judge A. B. Pittman, prohibiting publication of certain articles in the Chicago Daily News, according to a decision rendered by the Tennessee court today. The supreme court affirmed the decision of the circuit court of Shelby county, which sentenced Raine to pay a fine of $50 and serve 30 days in jail.

Marie Fenton and Mrs. Gene Hughes, Ralph Dunbar, Bob Warren and Others on the Program

Another pretentious program of Keith vaudeville is scheduled for the Forsyth theater this week in a bill headed by the illustrious Long Tack Sam, the Chinese magician, and containing such Keith notables as Marie Fenton and Mrs. Gene Hughes.

Long Tack Sam is heralded across the continent as the most mystifying legman artist in vaudeville. He has imported from the native shores of his home an amazing repertoire of mystic feats, in the execution of which he is supported by a credible troupe of magicians.

Mrs. Gene Hughes, supported by her husband and company, presents an irresistibly humorous dramatic playlet, "Lady Gossip," a satirical creation in which the talented actress finds more national latitude than any other vehicle in which she has ever appeared.

The Gene Hughes company is well known to vaudeville patrons in Atlanta, who will welcome her with fervor. An act of unusual merit is that of Ralph Dunbar and his singing bell ringer. One of the most pleasant memories left by the celebrated "Honeycomb Express," the musical comedy, is Marie Fenton, the dainty comedienne whose name is worshipped by all vaudeville. She shared honors with Al Johnson and other stellar luminaries in this splendid musical production. She brings to Atlanta four brand new songs and a satirical creation for each number.

Bob Warren is one of the stages' most noted monologues. He comes to the Forsyth direct from Broadway, where he alternated for months in the most conspicuous Broadway temples of vaudeville.

PRO-WAR SOCIALISTS

RAP ANTI-WAR GROUP

National Defense League Organized to Counteract Their Influence

LONDON, May 15.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—The Socialist National Defense League has been organized by a pro-war group of Socialists, including John Hodge, M. P., Robert Blatchford, M. P., and H. G. Wells, one of the leaders of the Social Democratic party; George H. Roberts, M. P., Charles Duncan, M. P., and H. G. Wells, the novelist, to combat the Keir Hardie and Ramsey MacDonald anti-war group.

"In this hour of national peril," says the manifesto prepared by the league, "when the independence of peoples is brutally menaced and the established public law and liberties of Europe are ruthlessly violated, a handful of pseudo-Socialists in this country are breaking the national solidarity and weakening the national effort in the face of the enemy. It has become a duty for true Socialists to expose and repudiate the errors of these dreamers. All of them are, consciously or unconsciously, the agents of German imperialism and traitors to the imperishable ideals of liberty and democracy which have united free Britain, independent Belgium and republican France in an indissoluble and glorious alliance.

In the manifesto the following attack is made on German Socialism:

IN TWO COMEDIES THIS WEEK.

"The Face on the Barroom Floor" is the title of the screaming comedy in which Charlie Chaplin, the funniest man in the world, appears at the Alamo No. 1 Monday. It is a two-reeler and Chaplin is at his most ridiculous.

Another Chaplin film at the Alamo is this week is "A Gentleman of Nerve," a howling farce. This will be shown Wednesday, along with "Red Tape," a two-reel ideal drama starring Fred Hearne and W. E. Browning in "Bumped for Fair," a Superba comedy.

Mrs. Gene Hughes, supported by her husband and company, presents an irresistibly humorous dramatic playlet, "Lady Gossip," a satirical creation in which the talented actress finds more national latitude than any other vehicle in which she has ever appeared.

Shipper and Kastrup, a perfectly balanced pair of singers, dancers and comedians, have a running fire time or breezy comedy this season that has been perpetrating riots throughout the Keith circuit.

This will be the first Atlanta appearance of the Dainty English Trio, an act composed of three attractive British beauties.

PRO-WAR SOCIALISTS RAP ANTI-WAR GROUP

National Defense League Organized to Counteract Their Influence

LONDON, May 15.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—The Socialist National Defense League has been organized by a pro-war group of Socialists, including John Hodge, M. P., Robert Blatchford, M. P., and H. G. Wells, one of the leaders of the Social Democratic party; George H. Roberts, M. P., Charles Duncan, M. P., and H. G. Wells, the novelist, to combat the Keir Hardie and Ramsey MacDonald anti-war group.

It has become a duty for true Socialists to expose and repudiate the errors of these dreamers. All of them are, consciously or unconsciously, the agents of German imperialism and traitors to the imperishable ideals of liberty and democracy which have united free Britain, independent Belgium and republican France in an indissoluble and glorious alliance.

In the manifesto the following attack is made on German Socialism:

"What is the German Socialism? Put briefly, it may be summed up in the assertion that because an unwilling Serb-Austrian subject killed an Austrian prince, Austria had the right to ravage the Serbs, and because Russia intervened to prevent Serbian annihilation, Germany was justified in exterminating the Serbs. It cannot develop anti-nationality. It cannot develop anti-nationality.

German Socialism has always been limited by political immaturity and juristic ideals. The present war is a choice between organized liberty and a mere organization.

British pro-war Socialists have made much of Liebknecht, the German Socialist who fought the war budget in the reichstag, while German Socialists united for the Fatherland treat Hardie and Macdonald as traitors.

Monna Dearth, the beautiful Indian girl, is featured in "The Skull Whippers," a two-reel drama of the United brand, Tuesday; and Marion Swaine, another favorite, is at the Alamo Thursday in "The Victrolist," a two-reel Empire drama.

In "The Law of Nature," at the Alamo No. 1 Friday Edwin August appears for the first time in Smallwood productions. He plays opposite Iva Shepard in this two-reel play which revolves around a delicate subject carefully handled. The production has been exceedingly well made and is able to tell its story with a few well worded titles.

BELGIAN WAR COMEDY DRAMA NOT A SUCCESS

London Let It Get by but Paris Objects to German Uniforms on Stage

PARIS, May 15.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—The "Kommandant," the Belgian war comedy drama, based on the German occupation of Brussels, after a successful run in London, made a doubtful success in Paris and has now been condemned to an early withdrawal by the prefect of police. It is the appearance of German uniforms on the stage that constitutes the principal French objection to the piece. The critics find another in the fact that the Kommandant, a Frenchman in uniform, is the hero of the piece.

"La Priere dans la Nuit," by Monseigneur Noire, is another war drama in which espionage is the basis of the plot and which, like the Kommandant, ends in violent and tragic justice to the enemies of Belgium and France.

"Volte Baudouin," taken from the novel of the same name by Maurice Maeterlinck, is a play of the war but is timely as showing the conditions in Lorraine before the war and the conflict between the native inhabitants and the German immigrants.

All of these plays have ardent critics for the reason that each of them treats dangerous subjects and lays bare the irritations to which France has been or still is subjected. The only successful theatrical production since the opening are the traditional "Revue" in which the poignant is sacrificed to the simply patriotic and in which it is given in full play. Such is the Revue entitled "Bis" by Rip, now having almost as successful a run at the Palais Royal has had, previously, "Les Huns et Les Autres" at the theatre Antoine.

Altogether the brief "war" season has not been a remarkable success financially, excepting patriotic benefit performances, which alone fit the prevailing sentiment.

DENIES GERMANY GETS FOOD THROUGH SWEDEN

STOCKHOLM, May 29.—(Associated Press.)—Indignant denial that American foodstuffs and other supplies are reaching Germany through Sweden are printed in the newspapers here today as a reply to London dispatches published in London newspapers.

These New York dispatches alleged that "exports on a gigantic scale are going from America to Scandinavia, the major part of them being provisions and foodstuffs intended for Germany."

PRICE PREPARES BOOK OF FACTS ABOUT STATE

Valuable Information Collected by Commissioner of Agriculture

James D. Price, commissioner of agriculture of Georgia, has issued a book in which he sets forth in complete form, both in text and pictures, the agricultural and industrial assets of the state. The book is entitled "Georgia, the Empire State of the South."

It is intended as a reply to hundreds of inquiries made at the department for information about the state, especially from prospective settlers, but it contains a lot of facts that many native Georgians are perhaps not familiar with.

A list of the counties gives the population of each; its leading city, leading products, average value of its farm land and altitude. There is also detailed climatic data.

The state's greatest productions are given detailed mention, as, for instance, the cotton crop, the second largest in the belt; the peach orchards; the grain yield, and its increase; hay, fruit and various other things related with special reference to the watermelon and cantaloupe.

Live stock comes in for special mention also. Attention is also given to hydro-electric power, manufacturing and commerce.

Each subject is specially illustrated with photographs. The book is the result of extensive research and is authoritative in every detail.

back about fifteen yards to the pebbly rough. Her next shot put her well up on the hill. Miss Stirling overtook her approach slightly. Mrs. Paine was on in her next shot. Miss Stirling played an approach putt and made the hole in four strokes. Paine took two putts for a five. Score Miss Stirling 4, Mrs. Paine 5, two down.

Third hole. Miss Stirling got one of the longest drives of the match and was followed by Mrs. Paine with good drive down the middle of the course. Mrs. Paine played well up on her second shot, and Miss Stirling overplayed her approach slightly. She made a try for the hole on her putt, but missed. Mrs. Paine was on in three, and again took two putts for a five, while Miss Stirling holed her second putt for a four. Score, Miss Stirling 4, Mrs. Paine 5, three down.

A PERFECT MASHIE.
Fourth hole. Miss Stirling played a perfect mashie pitch to the green on number 3, one of the longest holes on the course. Mrs. Paine's mashie shot was short, and she overplayed her approach. She was on in three and the third time took two putts for a five. Miss Stirling took two putts for a three. Score, Miss Stirling 3, Mrs. Paine 5, four down.

Fifth hole. Miss Stirling continued to play perfect golf, and was away with a beautiful drive down the middle of the course. Mrs. Paine also was away good, but her ball was about 50 yards short of Miss Stirling's drive. Her next shot was a good brassy well up toward the green. Miss Stirling continued to play her iron through the fair green, and was just short of the green on her second shot. Mrs. Paine was over on her approach slightly, while Miss Stirling made the first break in her perfect form by playing her approach short. She took two putts for a five. Mrs. Paine taking three for a six. Score, Miss Stirling 5, Mrs. Paine 6, five down.

Sixth hole. The players started the sixth hole, the longest of the tournament. Miss Stirling was the true form in her drive and got a long ball. Mrs. Paine's drive was not so long, but was true. Mrs. Paine tried her brassy on the second shot and got a nice. Mrs. Stirling used her iron, and got a beautiful shot and followed it up with a second, which put her a few yards short of the green. Mrs. Paine played a good brassy and iron up to the edge of the green and was on in five. Miss Stirling was on in four, and holed her ball on the second putt for a six. Mrs. Paine lost her putting game momentarily and took three putts for a six. Score, Miss Stirling 5, Mrs. Paine 6, seven down.

Seventh hole. Miss Stirling made her first fiddle here, topping her drive into the rough. Mrs. Paine got a good drive and a fine brassy. However, Miss Stirling played about thirty yards of the lost distance on a perfect iron shot from the long grass. Mrs. Paine forced her iron shot and went in the ditch. Miss Stirling played another long iron shot, and laid on an approach across the ditch. Mrs. Paine lifted out, and was in three again. Miss Stirling played a perfect mashie pitch to the green. Mrs. Paine went on in seven and down in nine. Miss Stirling taking two putts for a six. Score, Miss Stirling 6, Mrs. Paine 7, seven down.

BEST SHOT OF MATCH.
Eighth hole. This is another short hole, and Miss Stirling pitched to the left with her mashie. Mrs. Paine short on her shot and away. She dubbed her first approach and was on in three. Miss Stirling played the best shot of the match here. She was on a side hill in long grass. She played her mashie and dropped her ball about two feet from the hole. She holed her putt for a three. Mrs. Paine taking 8. Score, Miss Stirling 7, Mrs. Paine 8, eight down.

Ninth hole—Here Mrs. Paine won her first and only hole of the match, and Miss Stirling made her third four shot, hooking her drive off the course. Mrs. Paine made an excellent drive, and holed her ball within six feet of the cup with a sure approach. Miss Stirling's approach was short, and she took two putts, while Mrs. Paine holed her third putt. Score, Miss Stirling 8, Mrs. Paine 7, seven down.

Tenth hole—Mrs. Paine took the honor for the first time in the match, and was away with a good drive. Miss Stirling had a long ball, but it fell in the ground under repair. She lifted and played a mashie pitch to the green, which was cut down by a tree top. Mrs. Paine sliced an iron shot, but recovered with a good brassy. Miss Stirling's third shot was over the green, and she overapproached on her fourth. Mrs. Paine pitched to the green on her fourth shot, but took two putts for a seven. Miss Stirling holed her second putt for a six. Score, Miss Stirling 9, Mrs. Paine 7, seven down.

Eleventh hole—Miss Stirling allowed her drive into the rough, while Mrs. Paine got a straight shot in the middle of the fair green. Miss Stirling played an iron through the trees and recovered slightly. Her third shot was another perfect mashie pitch played to take the roll on a side hill, exactly, and the ball rolling dead for the cup. Mrs. Paine had a good second shot, but overplayed her third into a small ditch. She took two out of the ditch and three putts for

THREE JUDGES FOUND TO PASS ON SHRINERS' CASE

Governor Slaton Saturday succeeded in finding three superior judges who were qualified to sit with three judges of the supreme court on the Shriners' injunction appeal case. These are Judge B. E. Cox, of the Albany circuit; Judge J. B. Jones, of the northern circuit, and Judge W. E. Thomas, of the southern circuit.

The Shriners' case involves the suit of the white Shriners to obtain a permanent injunction against a negro order which, they allege, is an imitation of theirs. The supreme court justices were disqualified because of being Shriners or kinsmen of Shriners were Justice Lumpkin, Atkinson and Hill.

After the jury in the damage suit of Mrs. G. A. Hinson against the Piedmont mill for $10,000 for alleged injuries when she fell out of a cot while recovering from the influence of ether remained out for thirty-two hours without reaching a verdict. Judge W. B. Ellis, of the superior court, called the case a mistrial Saturday night at 3:30 o'clock.

The jury went out Friday at noon, when, after a night at the hotel, and a day of confinement Saturday, it was seen that no verdict would be reached. The jury was finally dismissed.

R. W. OGLESBY CUT IN DECATUR ST. POOL ROOM

R. W. Oglesby, a special agent, who lives at 175 Willet street, went to Grady hospital Saturday afternoon with a three-inch cut on his left cheek, which he asked the hospital physicians to dress.

He stated that he was sitting in a pool room at 520 Decatur street when two players got in a quarrel and one of them, in his excitement, walked over to where Oglesby was seated and cut him without provocation.

NEW ORLEANS, May 29.—The surprise in politics overnight was the news from Washington that the United States is not an enemy of Cuba. The news is an assurance that Washington will send that country a note close to an ultimatum. Coming at a time when the United States is expected to send a note to Cuba, the news would only lead to further disturb trade feeling.

Berlin says that Germany's answer will be published tomorrow. The answer is expected in Washington today. The main points are known at Washington, which explains a flash from New York.

This is the method that Margaret Anglin intends to follow in her notable revival of Greek plays this summer at Berkeley, Cal. This revival is the result of an increasing interest in plays of the old dramatists. One of the chief artistic efforts of today is the playing of the Greek dramas.

The general interest now in Greek plays is a recognition of the fact that they contain qualities of beauty and of force that are peculiar to them and have not been attained in modern plays.

ATLANTA LETTERS TO GERARDINE FARRAR *

Gerladine Farrar and Leon Rothier in "Carmen."

GERALDINE Farrar says in an interview in the New York Times that she is managed more by the public than by her managers. Letters from her audiences, of which more than twenty bear Atlanta postmarks, are her chief guides in perfecting the roles she sings.

A Japanese correspondent pointed out to her a technical mistake in "Madame Butterfly," and before she visited Atlanta this spring, she received any number of letters regarding the way she dressed in "Carmen." Following her appearance here, a dozen more letters on the same topic were added to her "correspondence course" on how an opera star should look and sing.

This course is offered by the public and is given to her absolutely free. The bulk of the letters, of course, are written by music lovers in New York City. But Atlanta is adding its share. In fact, the correspondence course is given by Gotham, with Atlanta's assistance. No other cities, for season's past, have heard Gerladine Farrar.

"I have come to look on the public as my manager, as well as my friend," she says. "As a matter of fact it fulfills the advisory function more thoroughly than any actual manager does, for what is one man against a thousand, especially if they are not only men but women and children?"

"I get hundreds of letters telling me what the public thinks on an infinite variety of subjects. Most of these letters came from small towns, many of them that I had never even heard of. One, for instance, was from a blacksmith in a little Virginia town who said he was over sixty years old. He said he had a little photograph on which he played some of my records, and he was glad I was going to act for the 'movies' because he could not hope to see 'Cio-San' any other way. The other letters were in the same tenor."

"There is no detail of my personal appearance, for instance, which the letter writers do not concern themselves with. One will write that I wear my hair too long, and another will say it is too short, and tell me why. I have on occasion been remonstrated with for allowing myself to get too fat, and remedies have been suggested out of the store of the writer's knowledge on the subject."

"Then there are many suggestions about my singing. They range all the way from unskilled suggestions of innocent bystanders to letters of learned dissertations by experts or those who think themselves qualified as such."

"My acting does not wholly escape criticism either, nor do my costumes. In these latter directions I usually get more benefit from the letters than from some of the former, perhaps because the general public finds itself on safer ground here."

"I had a letter from a Japanese objecting to my stage business of kissing the dagger before using it in 'Madame Butterfly.' He said the kara-kiri dagger is a sacred object, and should be treated with the greatest respect."

Farrar in "Carmen."

Georgia Writer Has A New Philosophy

BOOKS of a new philosophy are being written by Gerladine Farrar Whitney, of Augusta, who for the last two weeks has been a visitor in Atlanta. She expresses a new point, without sacrificing dramatic effect. Mrs. Whitney, fortunately, has the story teller's gift, combined with a new insight into present day conditions. Her books have all the readable quality that characterizes modern novels, but they also possess something more: a strength and freshness of thought, a clear vision, and an answer to many problems.

But she never preaches and she is never dull. Skillfully, the incidents of her novels express a new point of view, and she is able to tell the story never is made a thin veil for a tract. The unity of her novels is complete that characters, incidents, and thought combine perfectly.

Her "new thought" which has called such attention to her writings, is not the vague, impractical theorizing usually described as "new thought." It is on the other hand definite analysis of many present-day conditions, such as that of the working girl.

But, despite this directness, her books have a spiritual quality. They deal with the highest things, and yet, they do so clearly and understandingly. Among her books are: "The Shame of Circumstances," "The Shame of Choice," and poetry collected under the title "Losses from Garden."

Mrs. Whitney soon is to publish another book which promises to be one of her best.

Earl Greer Has a Four-Legged Chick

EARL GREER has in his chicken yard in the rear of his home on 26th avenue a four-legged chicken that seems as sprightly as its two-legged companions. The regulation number of legs which have the regulation number of feet, pendings. This chicken is about ten days old and has failed to reach the frying pan in due season. The superfluous legs of this young fowl are attached to its body at a point almost on its back and its feet well equipped with the usual number of claws—Biloxi (Miss) Herald.

SAVANNAH, Ga.—When John Howard, a half-breed Indian, was buried recently, he was dressed in a suit of buckskin covered with beads and fringes and a hat was placed on his head. Indian customs were observed at the cemetery.

Creature Killed by Russell J. Coles, After a Desperate Battle, Proves to Be the Largest of Its Sort Ever Brought to Land. Cast Will Be Mounted in Natural History Museum.

THE monster devilfish killed recently by Russell J. Coles, of Danville, Va., after a battle near Captive island, on the Gulf side of Florida, is the largest specimen of this sea beast ever brought to land.

Such is the size that a replica in plaster will be mounted in the American Museum of Natural History in New York. The devilfish was 18 feet 2 inches broad, and two launches required ten hours and thirty minutes to haul it two miles.

The story of how Russell J. Coles, the tobacco merchant from Virginia, led an expedition from Punta Gorda in search of devilfish, was printed May 9 in The Journal's Sunday magazine section, and was followed recently by his own story of the expedition printed in the New York World.

This trip in search of the queer mottled-colored creature was Coles' eighth and broad, hideous body has aroused interest. Here, in southern waters a Virginian set out on an expedition possessing unusual qualities of strangeness and adventure.

The party meant to harpoon the largest female manu ever landed. For years Mr. Coles has spent weeks each summer hunting devilfish and has perfected a method of harpooning that is peculiar to himself, and has brought him unusual luck.

A year ago he killed two large males. But this season, with the purpose of bringing to land the largest female of the species ever slain, he organized an expedition and set out from Punta Gorda.

"This season I have had considerable fault-finding by my correspondents with the dresses I wear in 'Carmen,' and with other things I do in that opera. My correspondents have been so thorough that anything I have not heard mentioned must be all right."

"In answer to their queries as to why I wear a long dress in the second act, I tell them first of all that the dress is correct, as it is copied carelessly from a painting by Zuloaga; then, among the practical reasons for wearing it are that it sets me off from the dancer without making it necessary for me to act unduly like a prima donna, and that it gives me the inestimable advantage of seeming tall when I am not. I made it made me look awkward. I saw the point immediately, and now I wear a shorter dress."

"And so it goes. The letters cover everything, and you can get a good idea of most of them if you study them carefully."

As he says in the New York World, his party sailed on a poor, depressive Sunday morning, and made for Captive island, on the Gulf side.

Accompanying Mr. Coles were Charles Willis, of Morehead City, N. C., and J. J. McLean and Luther Dixon, of Punta Gorda. On April 8 they made their first catch, which was a male 13 feet 2 inches wide. On the same day they killed another male, which was 14 feet 1.2 inch wide. But it was not until April 11 that they ran into a school of devilfish and battled desperately with the great 18-foot female, which was assisted by a male of almost equal size.

Mr. Coles says that during the fight there were six devilfish near the boat and one seemed to be 20 feet wide, but four kept clear of them and took no part in the fight.

At exactly 11:30 a. m. the female rose close alongside, and both he and Charles Willis led drive with harpoons. The creature first strained away from the boat, and then, turning, rushed straight at it. A male, which was her mate, came to her assistance, and the two strove to overturn the light craft. With terrific force they would rush against the sides; and at one time water began to pour into the boat and it was in danger of filling.

"But," said Mr. Coles, in his story in the World, "I kept striking with the lance at every opportunity the wounded creature gave me. At last she began to weaken slowly. Her fins dropped more slowly. She started sinking. I had hit her twenty-three times, each a serious wound, before she gave up. Then we could feel the dead weight of the body on the sturdy ropes that held our harpoons fast in her quivering black back. We hauled in on the tightening line and made it fast to the bow when suddenly the creature revived and darted straight for the bottom. The bow of our boat was nearly pulled under, but then the line—the finest quality of hemp—broke like a thread cotton. However, the rope on the "drogue" held and another harpoon made her fast.

"It was the creature's last effort. I glanced at my watch—it was 11:50. It had taken 22 minutes to kill our game."

This is the creature of which a plaster cast is to be mounted in the American Museum of Natural History in New York.

PLAYING CHECKERS TO FORGET THE LAST REUNION

H. A. Mashburn, a veteran at the Soldiers' Home.

OLD men at the Soldiers' Home are playing checkers to forget the "last reunion"—the reunion they cannot attend.

Their activity in life is over and their interest centers in an event of the past to be revived at the meeting of comrades in Richmond. This is to be the last gathering of its sort, the final coming together of the men who fought the war of 1861-65. And, yet, old age or lack of money makes it possible for few, perhaps none, of the veterans at the home to attend the reunion.

"Take to heart these facts, and you know the regret that exists today at the Soldiers' Home. You can understand why H. A. Mashburn, of Sumter county, says to J. A. Webb, of Sumter:

"Hey, there, you old checker-player, I can beat you blind-folded," meaning moving the board into a shady corner of the porch.

"Private Webb chuckles (Private Webb who served with distinction through all the hard campaigns of the war, "I could give you all kinds and heck you."

They are trying, you see, to intensify the attractions of checker-playing to nourish a rivalry that will give the men at the Soldiers' Home a new lease on life and leave no thought for "last reunions."

Of the 120 soldiers at the home, not more than five or six, perhaps none at all, will attend the reunion in Richmond. Most of them are too feeble to stand the trip, and the plain truth is, no money is to be had for the few who are still hardy enough to make the trip to Richmond. Some say 20, some say more than 10 or 15.

Did you know that the youngest man at the home is 68, that the oldest is 85, and that the 20 veterans there will average 73 or 74.

Time is moving fast for them. Tomorrow they are in the hospital, old men who have run their course. Every year they get feebler; perhaps in another 12 months only one or two at the home will remain strong enough for reunions. So, it is that the meeting at Richmond is called the last gathering of the veterans. So it is that the thought of absence from this coming together of their old comrades leaves an ache in the heart of every man at the Soldiers' Home.

H. A. Mashburn and J. A. Webb bent over their checkerboard last week in the shade of the porch that looks out over red fields turned by the plow.

At the time of the capture, the creature was 18 feet 2 inches long, 18 feet 2 inches wide, and 18 feet 2 inches high. It was the largest specimen of this sea beast ever brought to land.

It was H. A. Mashburn who was moving.

"I'd like to go," he said, "better than anything in the world. 'But,' lifting a king, 'I can't. And so,' shorting it up, 'square, I don't let myself think about it.'"

"No, we don't think about it," said J. A. Webb, and absent-mindedly selected one of his three kings. "Checkers will do for us," and with a far-away expression, he put down the king.

Mashburn cleared the board by a three-at-one-time jump, and Webb swept the red men toward him.

"Still," he admitted with a sigh, "I'd like to go to the reunion."

G. A. Keith, secretary of the Home, was asked how many veterans will answer "present" at Richmond.

"Perhaps three or four," he said, "perhaps none. We can't just yet tell it's a question of money. And, of course, only a few are physically able to make the trip."

In his office was a large picture of General Ulysses S. Grant hanging there by the superintendent of the Home.

"How did General Grant's picture get in here?" he was asked.

"We hung him there to have him in good company," explained Mr. Keith. "And when Grant was a bad fellow, anyhow, I know from fighting against him up in Richmond. The reason we want to go to the reunion is to get in good company."

Snake Had a Button To Keep Its Rattles on

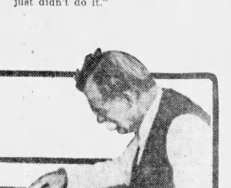

SEVERAL days ago Mr. Dick Meror killed a big rattlesnake bearing eighteen rattles and a button to keep them from slipping off the end of his tail. That was on road two. The last part of last week Sam Low killed another on Mr. T. H. Bridwell, Jr.'s place that was rattled to the same degree and similarly buttoned. These snakes were long enough to strike across the road and give one a strong desire to keep on the side of the street farthest from weeds. —Toombsboro (Ga.) Banner.

WAR MARRIAGES

BY MARINE PRACY

The Established Church of England in Encouraging Young Women to Marry Men Going to War, Has Degraded Marriage to a Physical Necessity, Says Bishop.

By Bishop Warren A. Candier.

EDMUND BURKE said: "War suspends the rules of moral obligation, and what is long suspended is in danger of being totally abrogated." The reason which underlies this profound observation of the great English statesman is that men regard war as creating imperative necessities which outrank and supersede the moral law. They invoke for the justification of their acts, the false proverb that "necessity knows no law." This proverb is in direct contradiction of the teaching of the scriptures, from which we learn on every page that the law of God knows no necessity. This was the implication of the words of Jesus when he said to the Tempter in the wilderness: "Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God." The imperative necessities of hunger are not sufficient to set aside the word of God, if we accept the teaching of Christ.

Once we decide to act upon the principle that necessity is superior to morality, we effectually nullify all ethical principles; men are then prepared to live as they list and justify their wrongdoing by claiming it was constrained by the necessity of circumstances. Conduct in such cases becomes a mere matter of conscience and conviction.

This is the case of Germany with reference to such acts as the sinking of the Lusitania, crowded with non-combatants, including a number of helpless women and children. The act cannot be justified by claiming it was constrained by the necessity of circumstances. Conduct in such cases becomes a mere matter of conscience and conviction.

If this be true, the real inference to be drawn from the facts is that the submarine is an unlawful and immoral vessel, that its use on the sea can no more be justified than the use of dum-dum bullets in the land. The submarine is the assassin of the sea, and no consideration of necessity can justify its use. If consequences be taken into account, the sinking of the Lusitania is to be followed. It might be very advantageous for Germany to destroy all British vessels in retaliation for the policy of Great Britain designed to starve Germany into submission; but if this advantage can not be taken without the commission of a hideous moral wrong, Germany may forbear taking such an advantage. It might serve the cause of the allies, if assassins were paid to murder the Kaiser; but the civilized world would look with horror upon such a method of promoting the success of the enemies of Germany. In like manner the civilized world is horrified by such things as the sinking of the Lusitania; and mankind will not accept any plea of necessity as sufficient to justify such a horrible wrong. Germany can not set aside the moral law.

But this inexcusable action of Germany is no more wrong than some things done by the nations opposing her. For example: At the outset of the war, both state and church in England advocated "war marriages" to the point just short of requiring them. Efforts were made to produce a constraining public opinion by which such marriages could be brought to pass; and the marriage ceremony was performed wholesale for nothing. The Established Church of England especially encouraged young women to become the brides of men going to war. In order thereby to fulfill their duty to the race. Dissenting bodies likewise took the same course. It is obvious that this degrading process degraded marriage to the level of a physical necessity—the necessity, in the face of war to propagate the race at an abnormal rate. The sanctity of marriage was trampled under foot, and only its physical consequence was considered.

It was inevitable that such a course would relax the restraints of morality and lead to a vast deal of sensuality. Such has been the case, and England is now agitated over the presence in the land of a vast deal of illegitimacy. A burning question with the British people is: What shall be done about the "war babies"? The Bishop of Oxford is quoted as saying: "The controversy indicates a very widespread laxity of sentiment and feeling with regard to sexual matters. I do not doubt in the least that of the two vices, intemperance and immorality, the last is working incomparably greater havoc. There is also an extraordinary and almost unparalleled laxity of the sanctity of the marriage vows. The words of the Bishop of Oxford are not too strong, and they show that under a plea of necessity the sanctity of marriage has been profaned by the British people. Thus, that institution upon which civilization depends as it does not depend upon any other social institution, has been degraded and defiled in order to overcome some of the anticipated consequences of the war. This is as reprehensible a piece of immorality as the sinking of the Lusitania by the German submarine. The German war vessel sank mothers and children out of sight beneath the waves of the ocean; the English agitation for "War Marriages" has sunk thousands of women and children beneath the waves of sensuality and shame.

The Sinking of the Lusitania, He Says, Makes the Submarine Nothing Less Than the Assassin of the Sea. No Plea of Necessity Is Sufficient to Justify Such Wrong.

Thus they wrung their creditors, demoralized themselves and damaged the country. Others are contributing to prolong the war in Europe by seeking profits from trade which amounts almost to complicity in the bloody warfare going on across the seas. They also justify their transaction by the necessity of war.

The most imperative necessity of the times, therefore, is that all public teachers proclaim with earnestness and power the inviolability of the moral law. The primacy of righteousness over all considerations of expediency must be asserted in the most forcible manner possible. The commercial world must be made to understand that commercial expediency can not set aside the Ten Commandments. The social world must be taught that no plea of necessity for amusement and recreation can be accepted to justify the violation of eternal ethical principles.

But we in America should not be so ready to observe and point out the sins of the Germans and the English as to blind ourselves to our own wrongdoing. The war in Europe has brought difficulties to us and multiplied thousands are using the war to justify conduct which they would not defend except under the plea of necessity during this trying period. Many are refusing to pay their debts, which they are able to pay, because they can hide their dishonesty under the plea of necessity arising from the war.

LITTLE PRINCE CARL OF SWEDEN, who wrote to the Emperor of Germany saying that he heard all the soldiers in Europe were killing each other, and would his "Imperial Highness, please tell them to stop the war. But he sent him a wooden model of Erdman, the emperor's favorite Dachshund.

Crop of Twins And Triplets in Kentucky

A TORNEY C. H. Wilson is the owner of twin beef calves, both doing well. Meeting a neighbor Monday morning Wilson said: "I have twin calves and twin boys at my house," to which his neighbor retorted: "I have twin boys going to school and two sets of twin colts at my house" and it is so.

Macon Has Best Sitter Among Hens in Georgia

MACON, Ga.—Not to be outdone by the second street hen that has laid 88 eggs in 87 days, E. G. Riggs, at 400 Broadway, comes with a game hen that has hatched and raised two broods of chickens, and is now hatching her third brood, and all chickens.

Among those who know about chickens and their habits, this is said to be a remarkable performance. That of the second street hen. Both of these hens will compete for blue ribbon or at least honorable mention, at the coming state fair.

Snake Brought in With Stove Wood

THAT we still have some snakes in Covington was evidenced a few days ago when a Highland Moccasin was discovered in the kitchen at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. R. Pennington. Exactly how this snake entered the house is not known, but it is thought that it was brought into the kitchen with an armful of wood, but was found under the sink—Covington (Ga.) News.

Not to speak of their intellectual and spiritual wants, to attend regularly upon public worship.

Perhaps some preachers are in part to blame for driving some tired people from the church on Sunday. The proclamation of Gospel truths under the power of the Holy Spirit brings rest to a human soul, but the discussion of all sorts of secular subjects in the pulpit makes tired people more weary. A preacher deserves the excommunication of the community when he turns away from the preaching of the Gospel to prating in the pulpit about all sorts of current events and sensational topics. Such a preacher is a sort of "abomination of desolation" standing where he ought not. Men of this type are a reproach to Christianity, and little less than a curse to the country. They too justify their course by saying it is necessary for them to discuss such themes in order to draw the people into the churches. Here again we see a plea of necessity made to justify a course of wrong.

Let us ask of what profit is it to merely draw people to the church without doing them any spiritual good. Of what use is the assembling of sensualists in a sacred place? Will a man defend the only real object of preaching by adopting methods that are inconsistent with the very nature of the Gospel? If a preacher finds himself unable to get people to hear the Gospel from his lips, the necessity which is upon him is not that of bringing secular themes into the pulpit, but of getting out of the pulpit himself. Man has no right to substitute for the Gospel mundane matters and account his performance preaching. The fact is there are some performances in some churches which amount to a criminal violation of the civil law enacted for the protection of the Sabbath day against profanation. Such performances amount almost to carrying on secular business on Sunday; and no plea of necessity can be accepted in extenuation of them.

Nothing is necessary in this world but absolute righteousness, and when a man finds that he cannot do right and live, the time has come when it is better for him to die than to live. If righteousness is a feasible in the universe, then there is no reasonable ground for believing that a righteous God created and overrules all things. This is a very stupid but very scriptural, ethical creed, and preachers above all others ought to enforce and exemplify it.

Sixteen-Year-Old Girl Caricatures Extremes of Dress Here With a Skill That Has Excited the Admiration of Artists. She Has a Natural Genius for Such Sketches.

A Sixteen years, without training in art, Miss Beale Voorhees, of 70 West Eleventh street, has developed a skill in piquant, dashing little drawings that has gained the praise of artists here. She is said to have, not merely a knack of dress, and has attempted the style of the "new artists." She did this as a pastime, and not in the thought that the drawings were skilful or worth while. They attracted the attention first of the her drawings, for they were done swiftly, and without preparation. Until now her efforts have been devoted to music. Both she and her sister, Genevieve Voorhees, age fifteen years, are pupils of Prof. George F. Lindner, and are among the best of the 400 or 500 violin pupils here. Her art studies have been delayed because of the fear that instruction would have the effect of robbing her of part of her originality. So, for the time being, she will continue simply to caricature Atlanta's extreme fashions.

Belled Buzzard Is Caught in Alabama

MONTGOMERY, Ala.—The "Belled Buzzard," whose left tinkle has been heard over the cotton fields of Georgia for years and years, and whose uncanny chimes in the clouds above have caused various of the skeptical cotton pickers, black and white, to look wood against the unknown "Jinx," has tinkled his last tinkle. The well-aimed shotgun of an Elmore county negro brought bell and buzzard to earth last week. Now the town drug store at Wetumpka, Ala., is the show place of the county, for here the crippled old bird is being displayed. People who have heard the mysterious bell at various times and under numerous circumstances, are standing about gazing at the bird of mystery. The little bell has traveled through many clouds; it has soared over the fields of the boll weevil country, and back over the more southeastern states.

Five Andrews' Raiders Living

FIVE of the Andrews raiders are alive. Eight were executed in Atlanta, after being tried by court martial; eight made their escape; and six were paroled.

It was 52 years ago that a party of 22 federalists, headed by James J. Andrews, made a raid upon the Confederate line of communications, which ended in their pursuit and capture. Andrews, a citizen of Flemingsburg, Ky., and twenty-one Northern soldiers in disguise went through the southern lines at Chattanooga early in April, 1862, and made their way south to Marietta, Ga. There they boarded a northbound train, allying suspicion by reciting that they were Southern refugees en route to a recruiting camp. At Big Shanty, where the train crew was at breakfast, the raiders detached the locomotive and made northward, tearing up track and burning bridges as they went. They were pursued and the chase continued with varying fortunes to Ringgold, a distance of about a hundred miles, where the raiders, having exhausted their fuel, deserted the locomotive and were caught.

The five surviving members of Andrews' raiders are: William Knight, Striker, O.; William Binsinger, McCormick, O.; Daniel A. Dorsey, Washington, D. C.; John A. Porter, Winfield, Ind.; Wilson W. Brown, Farwell, Mich.

Forest Garden for College of Agriculture

ATHENS, Ga.—A forest garden is rapidly being developed at the Georgia State College of Agriculture. Seed beds have been established and planted to various tree seeds. From this as a beginning, the college plans to develop a nursery that will be equal to supplying the demands for trees in reforestation and reclamation of eroded lands, as well as to start forests in a commercial way.

Defective Pupils Sure to Number About 42 Per Cent

Bad Teeth Are Principal Cause of Trouble. City Needs Free Dental Clinics. Progress of In-Door and Out-Door Classes Compared.

A REPORT to be made this week by Dr. Robert G. Stephens, chief medical examiner of Atlanta public schools, will show that approximately 42 per cent of public school pupils here are physically defective.

This percentage is 25 per cent less than the number of defectives at the time of Dr. Stephens' appointment as medical examiner five years ago. The decrease in the physical defects of public school pupils has been steady and permanent, but in Dr. Stephens' opinion the percentage of defectives will never be less than 40.

The defects among children consist chiefly in bad teeth. Out of 122 defective children at one school, 98 had defective teeth.

The examiner has found that in many instances children's teeth are not treated because their parents lack the money. The health of the children suffers. They are retarded in their studies, and in both their physical and their mental development because the city has no free dental clinics.

"One of the things we need most," said Dr. Stephens last week, "is such a clinic. It isn't ignorance or indifference on the part of parents that makes a good many children defective through bad teeth. It's the lack of money to give the children dental treatment. Many times I have recommended free dental clinics, but such recommendations have never been considered."

Adenoids and enlarged tonsils are the next most frequent causes of physical defects among school children. Many instances are also found of poor nutrition, due sometimes to bad digestion, sometimes to insufficient food.

Particular attention was given by Dr. Stephens, in his examination, to the four open-air classes at the Atlanta Normal school, which he compared to the corresponding in-door classes at this school. The comparison is surprising. During the first part of the school year the in-door classes improved more rapidly than the out-door classes. They showed a larger number of physical defects remedied and a greater gain in weight. But during the latter part of the year, this condition has been reversed. The out-door classes have gained more rapidly.

The children of both the in-door and the out-door classes were examined in October, in January, and in May.

The in-door pupils furnished 84.2 defectives in October and 52.4 in January, a decrease of 15.9 per cent.

The out-door pupils furnished 57.4 defectives in October and 47.06 in January, a decrease of 10.35 per cent.

The in-door pupils, from October to January averaged a gain of 4.5 pounds in weight for each child. The greatest gain was 8.2 pounds, the greatest loss was 2.4 pounds.

The out-door pupils from October to January showed an average gain of 5.07 pounds for each child. The greatest gain was 15 pounds, the greatest loss was 2.4 pound.

But the comparative progress from January to May was furnished.

The same body of in-door children who, in October had furnished 84.2 per cent defective, in May furnished 52.2 per cent, a decrease of 38.1 per cent.

The same body of out-door children who, in October, had furnished 57.4 per cent defective, in May furnished 56 per cent, a decrease of 2.4 per cent.

The in-door children showed a gain of 4.5 pounds for each child since October; the out-door children, a gain of 4.2 pounds for each child. The greatest gain among the in-door children since October was 12.14 pounds, among the out-door children was 21.12 pounds.

But the chief difference between children of the in-door and the out-door classes, says Miss Mary W. Postell, principal of the Atlanta Normal school, is in alertness and attention. Children studying in the open air, she finds, are better behaved, more intent, and quicker to learn.

Snow-White Owl Is Killed Near Americus

HARRY SCHNEIDER, says the American (Ga.) Times-Record, exhibited here today a white owl, which was killed near the city this morning. The bird is snow white, except for a streak of delicate brown on its wings. White owls are not "indigenous to the soil" here, and this one created quite a bit of interest. Mr. Schneider will have the bird mounted.

Editor of the News to Editor of the Gazette

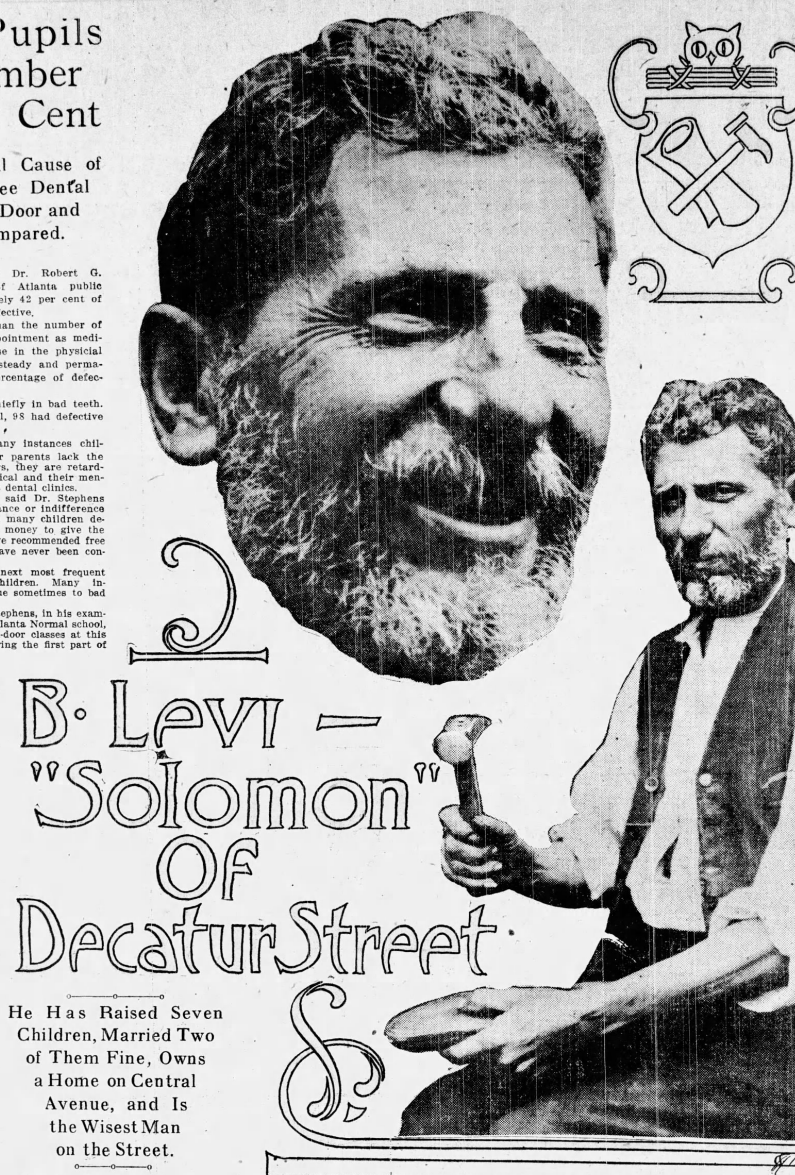

The Jackson (Miss.) News recently printed the following editorial paragraph:

"THE editor of the Magnolia Gazette has been making a truly pitiable effort for several weeks to get himself noticed by the Daily News. Such persistence is worthy of reward. We will therefore pay concerning the editor of the Magnolia Gazette that if his brains were placed in the skull of a jaybird the poor creature would fly backwards."

Unusual Gold Pieces

Owned by Marvin Bell

CAINESVILLE, Ga.—Mr. Marvin Bell, of Forsyth county, was here Tuesday displaying 40 gold pieces of broad smile, but $25 worth of gold pieces, one-half dollar pieces and six one-fourth dollar pieces. Mr. Bell bought them from Hot Springs, Ark., a few days ago, paying 80 cents each for the half-dollar pieces and 40 cents for each of the 25 cent pieces. These gold pieces are rarely seen and were made between the years of 1850-60.

B. LEVI -
"Solomon"
of
Decatur Street

He Has Raised Seven Children, Married Two of Them Fine, Owns a Home on Central Avenue, and Is the Wisest Man on the Street.

By Angus Perkerson

"W HEN you got a big store," said B. Levi, "you got big trouble. But when you got a little one, maybe, you got house rent and enough to raise children."

"In Greenville, Ga., in Meriwether county, I lost one $1,000 in one year with a big store. And here in this little hole I've made enough to raise seven children and marry two of them fine."

Everybody on Decatur street knows Levi. The Solomon of his people to whom they all come for advice—a little, sharp, brown man, with a fringe of dark beard, dressed in streaks of white, and alert, black eyes.

For 22 years Levi has hammered away at 113 Decatur street, just beyond the Washington street viaduct. With five cents in his pocket he came to Atlanta, set up in business in this hole in the wall, saved until he had enough to bring his wife over from Russia, kept on saving until he bought him a home, is still saving, still hammering shoes in the same little shop, still pausing between licks to drop sharp words of advice into the ear of troubled visitors.

Along in the evening his shop is crowded, not so much by customers as by men of his own blood come to him for advice. The place is half-lit; Darktown's outpouring is trooping back and forth on the street; a blind negro at the edge of the sidewalk is mashing and putting an accordion; a street-hawker from the bed of a wagon is shouting out his wares; and a cheap piano upstairs is jingling.

Levi, the astute, Levi, the wise, the quick-tongued, and, yet, the prudent old man, Decatur street, leans back a little in his chair, lets his eyelids drop, and listens.

"Ah," he cries, "you say you don't make enough. Maybe you don't save enough. Now, listen, I had only five cents."

He straightens to his feet, because he can't talk sitting still, and hunts about for some place to spit. He walks up and down, throws his hands into the air, and pictures it all—how frugally won him past want, put him in comparative comfort, allowed him to raise seven children, and all this with no other means of live-their wonderful old man, their seer to whom they all go in trouble.

Levi is the type of an unbeatable race of immigrants who arrive in abject poverty; live, at first, under the meanest circumstances, and slowly work their way up into more light and air. Poverty doesn't break their spirit or rob them of self-respect. It simply fills them with a longing to have better things for their children. It simply teaches them the lesson of frugality and work and inspires them with a purpose to accumulate.

Twenty-five miles from Warsaw, in Russia, B. Levi was born, and he felt the full harshness of the czar's rule. "Russia, Germany, Austria—all the rest of them," he shouted, shaking his hands in the air, "they can go there," pointing downward. "This is the only country. This is the country that must live till the world turns over. We don't care nothing about them over there—we're sorry for the widows and the orphans—but we don't care nothing about the countries. We're Americans."

He had to grab up a shoe and beat on it to calm himself. This whacking on sole-leather has been Levi's occupation since he was big enough to toddle. At his home near Warsaw he learned the trade, and married there. Then, the Russian government began to press so hard on him and all his kind that it couldn't be borne any longer. He had been married only a week, when he told his wife he meant to change in the new country.

They had been married four years and a week, and, yet, for four years he hadn't seen her.

The best he could do in the way of a home was one room in a wagon yard off Decatur street.

"There was a nigger on one side of us and one on the other," he said, "but I couldn't do any better. We had to live somehow. My first two boys were born there, and we moved to Moore street. Then I bought a home on Central avenue."

"One of my boys makes $175 a month now and everything's free (he meant the boy gets his traveling expenses) because the large part of what he earned, there was still lacking enough money for her passage. He wrote her he was coming to Atlanta, and she wrote back a letter of love."

"She thought," said Levi, "that Georgia was as bad as Russia."

Things couldn't be worse there than they were in Russia, and he hoped in a little while to be able to send for her.

But, after living four years in New York and allowing himself barely enough to eat in order that she should have the large part of what he earned, there was still lacking enough money for her passage. He wrote her he was coming to Atlanta, and she wrote back a letter of love.

"She thought," said Levi, "that Georgia was as bad as Russia."

He set up in the little shop on Decatur street, mended shoes all day and into the night, and saved. How he did it, Levi never been in any trials.

"I raised all my children pretty good. I don't say better than anybody else, but pretty good. I ain't never fed or robbed anybody. I owe money, but everybody owes me money, and I will be paid. I ain't never been in the courts. I been in the jails three times, but I ain't never been in any trials."

"When I left Russia I said to myself, 'certainly I got to live and raise children' and, so, I went to New York, and then came here. And I've stayed in one place because there's not any good moving around."

"Decatur street's a good place if you behave yourself and Peacock's no good if you don't behave. That's it, isn't it, behave yourself and save money?"

That's B. Levi, the astute, the wise, the Solomon of Decatur street, the father of seven children, and the owner of a house and lot on Central avenue and another on Moore street—B. Levi, once a dweller near the city of Warsaw, now the shoe-maker who hammers sole-leather in the hole of a wagon yard off Decatur street.

Baby Who Hadn't a Stitch, Is Given Oodles of Clothes

Girl Who Wanted to "Look Like Other Children," Gets a Dress. Relief Given Through Journal's Want Ad Column in Interest of Charity.

THROUGH a column in the want ad section of The Journal, given to the Associated Charities to use in seeking relief for needy and suffering people, distress in Atlanta is being "advertised away."

Pitiful stories come daily to the ears of the Charities that would be relieved if everyone could hear them. The plan was proposed to publish "ads," asking for charity, for food, for clothing, for brotherly love. This plan was made known to The Journal, and a column now is printed daily in the want ad section telling of the most pressing instances of need reported to the Charities.

For a month this space has been given each day, and the result has been the alleviation of misery after a measure of suffering.

Shortly after the printing of these want ads began a report was made to the Charities of a destitute family in which a baby had been born. Because of sickness and lack of employment the income of the family had been reduced to nothing. The next day this "ad" was printed.

"Fine baby boy. Just born, weighs 11 pounds. But hasn't a stitch of clothes. Won't somebody give him some?"

Every mother in Atlanta seemed to read the few lines. By messenger, by mail, and under the arms of the rivers, clothes began to arrive. They kept coming. The "ad" was as vivid as a spoken word. Already the baby has clothes enough to swaddle itself a foot deep.

Not long afterward the Charities heard of a thirteen-year-old girl, almost ready to finish school, but who had no suitable dress for graduation exercises.

"Wanted," read an advertisement next day, "white dress for thirteen-year-old girl to wear at commencement. She wants to look like the other children."

Could such a plea go unheeded? Before the office of the Charities opened next morning, white dresses began to arrive. And so on, day by day, poverty is being relieved by little three-line advertisements printed in the column given by The Journal to the Charities.

Those in want are being enabled to come and tell their privation to those who have enough to give.

In the last two weeks dozens of instances of distress have been relieved. Young women, stranded, deserted by husband, left out of hospital, and must have clothes in order to go to work.

Perhaps you saw that advertisement; at least twenty people answered it, and the sick woman, alone and deserted, has been found a place to live and to work.

A baby "just starting out in life" needs more clothes. Only a few days later that "ad" appeared, and the Charities were flooded with requests.

"One of my boys makes $175 a month now and everything's free (he meant the boy gets his traveling expenses) because the large part of what he earned, there was still lacking enough money for her passage. He wrote her he was coming to Atlanta, and she wrote back a letter of love."

Howard Tells How Allies Will Win From Germany

those who heretofore had been rejected because a physical examination showed they were not fit for any service.

"The Allies, on the other hand, have the whole world from which to draw supplies, they are financially stronger than Germany, and they have more men who can be made into soldiers and sent forward as the war goes on."

"The longer the war lasts, the worse it will be for Germany, the better it will be for the Allies."

"But I don't think it will be a short war. It will take a long time for the Allies to beat down Germany's defenses.

"With the millions of troops Germany has under arms, her defeat must be a process of attrition, a wearing away both of men and of munitions."

"I don't think most people realize the part England is taking in the war. Every night England is sending men and material across the channel, and the English army now in France is much larger than is generally known."

"I don't think it is generally realized either that the poor showings of the Russians probably is due to their lack of war munitions. Vladivostok and Archangel are the only two ports through which Russia has been able to get supplies, and not being a manufacturing country, she has been unable to produce herself the munitions she needs. The supplies from Vladivostok have had to be transported all the way across Siberia, and Archangel, because of ice, is closed to shipping during the winter."

"The entrance of Italy, I think, will mean the breaking of the present deadlock. The ultimate victory will be with the Allies."

"And, yet, in Germany, there is perfect contentment, a perfect support of the government. They've given up the idea that they can capture Paris or invade England, but they think they can remain in possession of Belgium and of the parts of France they hold. Every German realizes that, no matter what started war, his people are fighting now for their existence as a first-class nation, and everyone is standing back of the government."

"Germans affect to be sorry for the Russians, and they show a bitter hatred for England. The feeling comfort British was less pronounced at first, but recent events are nourishing a bitterness of England's part against Germany."

"When I first reached Europe, the attitude of the Germans toward the Allies was very friendly. Now, because of the munitions of war we have sold to the Allies, this feeling has changed to one of enmity."

The first of the wedding is that of Miss Bertha Moore and Mr. William Hoadley Merrill, of Eufaula, Ala., which will be solemnized on the evening of Tuesday, June 25. Miss Moore, who is the prettiest and accomplished daughter of Mrs. John H. Moore and the late Mr. John McDowell Moore, is a granddaughter of the late Mr. B. Wharton and W. A. Moore, both of whom were among the pioneer citizens of Atlanta. She is very young, having only graduated during the past June from the Girls' High school. She was formally presented to Atlanta society during the past fall and was one of the very charming figures at the many entertaining dinners at the season, Mr. Merrill, who is a graduate of the University of Alabama, is prominent in the business and social life of his city and has many friends through the state who will be interested in his approaching marriage.

The wedding of Miss Mary King and Mr. Henry Hamilton Hart will be solemnized on the evening of Wednesday, June 30, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George E. King on Peachtree street. Miss King, who is a lovely young girl, was a debutante of the past season and has been one of the most popular members of Atlanta society since her debut. She is petite, brunette, and her charm, her delicate manner and personality have endeared her to all who know her. Mr. Hart, who is the oldest son of Judge Hart, is prominent in the business and social life and is one of the rising young business men in the city. The wedding will be a beautiful event of the early summer and will be preceded by a round of bright parties given in honor of the young couple.

To Bride Elect

A pretty compliment to Miss Annie Louise Pagett, a bride-elect of June, was the bride party given Saturday afternoon, by Mrs. Malcolm Rybohold, at her home on North Boulevard.

The tables were placed in the spacious reception hall and drawing room where a profusion of lavender sweet peas and Dorothy Perkins roses were used in artistic decoration. The score cards were hand-painted wedding bells tied with lavender tulle and orange blossoms.

Punch was served by Miss Virginia Bailey and Miss Mary Allison Blondgett. Miss Pagett's pretty toilet was fashioned cream lace with coat of pink tulle and she wore a corsage of pink roses and lilacs of tiny valley. Her hat was pink tulle trimmed in roses.

Mrs. Rybohold wore flesh-colored champagne trimmed in shadow lace. The guest prize was a hand-painted bride's book—the workmanship of Mrs. Rybohold's brother, Mr. Tom Johnson. Miss Pagett was also presented with a hand-painted recipe book, containing the favorite recipe of each guest.

Top score was made by Mrs. Albert Smith, and the competition was out by Mrs. John Davis, both prizes being silk hats.

The invited guests were Mrs. J. R. Pagett, Mrs. Russell Bridges, Mrs. John Davis, Mrs. Albert Smith, Mrs. W. A. Gassett, Mrs. J. L. The Wind-up of RICH'S 48th Anniversary Sale Brings Scores of Splendid Bargains

RICH'S 48th Anniversary Sale ends tomorrow. It has been splendidly successful, so much so, that Tuesday the buyers hurry back to New York to replenish stocks. But before going they must CLEAR AWAY the many odd lots and dwindling lines that remain from the sale.

In addition to the items mentioned here, we have full pages in today's Constitution and American that tell in detail of these sales. Worthy of special mention are:

—Wind-Up of Silk Sale
—End of May Linen Sale
—Wash Goods Sale at 33c
—Knit and Silk Underwear
—New 50c Neckwear at 25c
—Baby Caps at Half Price

—Umbrella Sale
—Clean-Up of Laces
—$6 to $10 Art Pieces $2.98
—Let Go of Ready-to-Wear
—Half-Price Millinery

Business is Good!

NEXT to December, last May, (1914) was the busiest month of the year. With few exceptions, however, every department this May (1915) has equalled, if not surpassed, last year's splendid record.

—Under existing business conditions, this record is remarkable. It has called for the determination to secure the best values in the market for Atlanta.

High-Power Merchandising

—Day after day we have advertised more real values than any other store; often more than all the other stores combined.

—Business has come to us, because we have gone after business.

—We shall continue to do so. This week nearly all our buyers are off again to New York—some for the fourth time and fifth time this year.

—Business is good at Rich's because Atlanta finds it good business to trade here.

HAVING been in stock a scant thirty days, these dresses are in the height of fashion.

—Our customers have liked the styles so well, that now we have only one—or at most, two—dresses of a kind left.

—That—and that alone—is the reason for grouping them at this clearaway price of $24.75.

—The dresses are variously of nets, laces and crepe de chine; chiefly in white.

—Each dress is an indescribable combination of loveliness—some with the skirts, some with ribbon sashes; some with French hand-made flowers. But we can't portray their beauty in words—please come and see them. Yesterday they were priced at $29.50, $35 and $39.50; tomorrow they are $24.75.

NOTE—Many of these dresses are fitted with the KOHINOOR DRESS FASTENER. No hooks to catch laces or break threads. Just snap—and everything is fast. "Good Bye Old Hook and Eye."

The club was decorated with quantities of daisies and ferns. Miss Mary Bell Dean read several selections. A feature of the evening was a hat contest, the prize for which was won by Miss Dean and Mr. Long. The regular business was interspersed with a musical program. Vocal solos were rendered by Mrs. Marvin Conner and Miss Ruth Cameron and Miss P. L. Terrell. Mrs. Van Savenor played the piano.

A reading by Miss Ethel Hale

In closing my report I feel that we must especially commend the work of some of our helpers.

1. The yard committee, who have

2. The work of the former Debutante club for the children's ward. They have earned, and saved more than $200.00.

The young girls, who sat at our children's ward regularly.

4. The girls of the English Commercial High school, who have sent a gift of $25.00, as a self denied offering.

6. The young girls of Washington Seminary, who sent such generous Thanksgiving baskets to the home.

Thanksgiving checks, worthy of many friends who generously helped us with the very successful horse show recently held in Piedmont park.

All of our friends are most cordially invited to attend the dedication of a table to the memory of Mr. T. J. Williams, one of our most faithful workers. The service will be held on the lawn of the Home for the Incapables on Tuesday afternoon, June 15, at 2 o'clock.

My dear Sir:-
I can truthfully say that it has taken a very short time to convince me that the Hudson Light Six meets any and all conditions and every claim made for it by the agent and yourself has so far been fully substantiated.

It is undoubtedly a good automobile value and eminently satisfactory.

What Hudson Owners Say

This double-page is a living, breathing testimonial of the perfect satisfaction, and that you cannot do better than buy a Hudson. Have used, who are now using, and who will continue to use Hudson motor cars are the best they can buy, the best of Atlanta every day--and you know that they are competent judges of the world, that it gives the most perfect satisfaction of any car being sold that when they buy again they will buy another Hudson.

You are going to buy a motor car for the very same reason that these men bought theirs. You have gotten, are getting, and will continue to get. That being true--and it is true--BOUGHT? In other words, WHY DON'T YOU BUY A HUDSON?

Why the HUDSON Leads

Even Howard E. Coffin, the world-famous Hudson designer, was amazed at the success of the Light Six--his latest car. It is the greatest of all the great lines of Hudsons. It is by all odds the most popular car of the last two years. Thousands of experienced motorists, in Atlanta and Georgia, as in every other part of the country, are using the Six-40. And in every instance it has EXCEEDED their most critical demands.

When the 1915 Light Six was announced some manufacturers hastily changed their plans and prices. There was a scramble to copy, as closely as possible, Mr. Coffin's ideal of beauty, road performance, light weight, low fuel cost, and marvelous tire economy. Needless to say, none of these many attempts has equalled the original.

Numerous so-called Light Sixes are on the market. The majority, admittedly are more or less experimental. Many of them really are HEAVY cars. Cast iron often is used where the HUDSON SIX parts are made of aluminum or aluminum alloys.

Two years of severe test over thousands of miles of roads of every description has proved the sterling quality of the Hudson Six-40. More than ten thousand are in use in all parts of the world. From Northern Sweden to South Africa the Hudson Light Six reigns supreme in its class.

These things have established a feeling of confidence in the Hudson Six. Men know that the car makes use up to the claims made for it, and when an array of the best citizens of a city, of a state, are lined up in favor of a motor car, as are the men of Atlanta and Georgia on this double page, there can be no doubt as to its quality and performance.

Now, after the publication of this double-page, when you buy a Hudson Light Six, you know absolutely what the car you are buying is and what it will do.

Experience, rather than experiment, guides the wise motor car buyer. Attained success is a safer guide than mere possible success. We say to you: "See for yourself what the Hudson has done, what it is doing, and what it will continue to do."

SAYS SOUTHEASTERN ROADS PLAN GENERAL FREIGHT INCREASE

Press Chairman of Georgia T. P. A Says Proposed Sugar Schedule Is to Be First of Large List of Increases

DECLARES THIS SCHEDULE IS PATENTLY UNJUST

Calls on All Wholesalers and Traveling Men to Resist Proposed Increase and Prevent Further Advances

Editor Firing Line:
Permit me to call the attention of the traveling and commercial men, jobbers and manufacturers, to the shrewd scheme of the railroad interests of the southeastern territory for a general increase in rates, using the fourth section of the long and short haul decision of the commission as a justification for the proposed advances.
The first on the list has been filed with the commission and affects rates on sugar from New Orleans to southern territory, effective June 1, 1915. Under the decision of the commission is the sugar case the carriers were instructed to readjust their rates and to meet out inequalities in rates, keeping in mind the preserving of present revenues of carriers on this class of traffic.
To give the public a general idea of the adjustment worked out by the carriers the following information was presented to the Interstate Commerce Commission before the suggestion board May 21, who have been requested to suspend the proposed rates giving the public an opportunity to present their side of the case. The representatives of the shippers of New Orleans on May 11 showed that the proposed tariff carried to the southeastern points $48,150 in advances and only $4,500 reductions. The increase to Atlanta alone amounted to $14,100, or more than three times the total reductions to all points. The shippers of Atlanta through the organization of the Atlanta Freight Areas, organized before the commission on May 11, have been successful in having the rates suspended in order that the commission make a thorough investigation before the rates are finally approved.

MISLEADS THE PUBLIC.
Based upon the above showing, it is justified in saying that the purpose of the carriers was not only to mislead the public as to real objects a view in their readjustment, but the commission itself, in the fact that the carriers have been requested to suspend the rates, but the commission has not been able to see how the commission can make a thorough investigation before the rates are finally approved.
It can be clearly seen by those who are in a position to see the hidden hand that if the railroads are successful in putting this advance into effect it will mean an advance of the cost of living to approximately $100,000 annually that will be necessarily be paid by the consuming public be they rich or poor and strike all alike, measured only by the quantity consumed. It was shown that the advance of rate on sugar from New Orleans to Atlanta from 25 to 30 cents was not only unreasonable in and of itself, but was discriminatory, as the carriers established a rate of 24 cents to Chattanooga a distance of 492 miles, but proposed to establish 28 cents to Atlanta for a distance of only 496 miles, notwithstanding the fact that the class rate from New Orleans to Atlanta were all substantially lower than to Chattanooga.

SHOULD RESIST.
If the manufacturers, jobbers and consumers allow the roads to advance the rate on sugar without resistance, similar advances will follow in rapid succession all along the line, instead of well as outward rates to and from every point in the United States, and it is believed that the sugar schedule is but a test case to see what can be done in the long list of commodities the south receives and distributes in large volume.
The foregoing is a mere outline according to our views and we are of the opinion that every manufacturer, jobber, consumer, and the traveling men especially should get busy and give their earnest support as well as financial aid toward an organized movement to resist the proposed advances. In this connection we want it to be understood that we stand for fair treatment to the carriers as well as to the public, and if the carriers can demonstrate

What the Boys of Atlanta Council, No. 18, Are Doing

BY E. M. ARNEZ, Secretary

Editor Firing Line:
Mrs. Julia Davidson, wife of the late J. R. Davidson, past senior counselor, we are pleased to state is improving. O. A. Kinsler, of M. C. Kiser & Co., made a trip last week down the Central, reporting business good.
J. R. Check, member of the Savannah council, who was on the committee who recently entertained the grand council at their recent meeting, was in the city this week.
W. A. Webb, past senior counselor, to show his loyalty to the order, came in from a trip from North Carolina to attend the grand council meeting.
U. L. Cox, who is representing the Boll Overall company of Windsor, traveling in south Georgia, was in the city, recently having been a delegate to the grand council.

OFFERS CONFIDENTIAL STENOGRAPHIC SERVICE

Mrs. Elizabeth Martin and Mrs. Carmen MacKenzie, experts in their line, have formed a partnership for the purpose of conducting the business of confidential stenographers. They are soliciting the patronage of the business men of Atlanta and all salesmen who travel out of the city. The facilities which they offer traveling men will be particularly serviceable to the knights of the grip. In their capacity as confidential stenographers they will be able to receive, forward or deliver mail arriving during the traveler's absence. Their service will be up-to-date in every respect. Already they have a large clientele which is finding their services invaluable. They have offices at 510 Chamber of Commerce building.

TRUSTEE WILDER REPORTS FINE VINEGAR SALES

D. R. Wilder, permanent trustee for Jones Brothers & Co., states that he is having a very active trade indeed for this firm on pickles and vinegar. When the firm went into bankruptcy there was a hand 40,000 gallons of pure apple juice. This is now being put through the generators and producing a very high quality of pure apple vinegar. The company also had on hand a large quantity of pickle stock, which is now being sold into the well known brand of pickle stock, which is now being made wherever ordered. In fact, the company is selling all the goods they can manufacture.

C. T. GAUSE DIED TUESDAY AT EASLEY, S. CAROLINA

C. T. Gause, South Carolina traveler for Montag Bros., died suddenly on Tuesday at Easley, S. C. Mr. Gause's headquarters were at Augusta where his funeral services were conducted on last Wednesday, with interment at Milledgeville on Thursday.
Mr. Gause had been with Montag Brothers for fifteen years. He is survived by his wife and two children.

It is a reasonable doubt that their revenues are insufficient, and if they will take the public into their confidence they will be assured a square deal, but the foregoing case certainly is not conducive to the establishment of that confidence that ought to exist between the carriers and the public.
Let him who reads this notice, "There is no use to lock the door after the horse is stolen."
Yours respectfully,

RICE & HUTCHINS' FALL CATALOG OUT JULY 1

Salesmen Will Start Out on July 1 With Additional Fall Styles

"Our men will start out in July with additional fall samples," said E. J. Thomas, of the Rice & Hutchins Atlanta company. "These additional lines will represent all the late styles and novelties that they will carry in stock during the fall."

"We expect to handle a larger variety of lines than we have ever done before. The trade is in a measure looking to us to furnish them with the styles they desire. They find they can get them here in Atlanta as well as they like to patronize Atlanta. Our new fall catalogue will be out July 1; this is a month earlier than usual."

BALD HEADS AND HAIRIES PLAN BASEBALL GAME

McCord-Stewart Force Much Excited Over Coming Contest—Strategy Used

Much interest is being manifested in the organization of two baseball teams by the McCord-Stewart force. One team is to be known as the "Bald Heads" and the other as "Hairies." Some difficulty, however, has been experienced in the organization of the two teams, due to the rivalry between H. A. McDonald, R. J. Bickerstaff and Walter James as to who shall be captain of the "Bald Heads."

The "Bald Heads" have thrown a bomb into the camp of the Hairies by suggesting that the game be played bare-headed. The "Hairies" contend that this is an attempted strategy on the part of the "Bald Heads." In order that the sun glistering upon their bright pate might shine in the eyes of the "Hairies" and confuse them in their battling and base running.

A full account will be given in the Firing Line of the first game between these contending forces.

President Wilson Thanks U. C. T.'s For Resolution

While the Grand Council of the Georgia-Texas U. C. T. was in session at Gainesville, Ga., May 19-23, a resolution was passed commending President Wilson for his neutrality policy and his action in upholding the honor and dignity of this country. A copy of the resolution was wired to the president, and the following was received by Frank W. Webb, chairman of the committee, from J. P. Tumulty, secretary to the president.

"The president genuinely appreciates the resolution which you and Messrs. Brownell and Elberidge telegraphed him in the name of the United Commercial Travelers of Georgia and Florida, and he asks me to convey to you and to all concerned the expression of his warmest thanks for your appreciation and good will."

"All the travelers who went on the trip to Gainesville, have now a new line of fish stories and a new stock of dope generally with which to regale their customers when they return to the road. Mr. O'Donnell distinguished himself as being the catfish expert. No one could catch so many 'cats' so readily as he."

FULTON COUNCIL 505 WILL HAVE OUTING ON SATURDAY JUNE 5

Members and Friends Will Gather at Jester's Old Mill for Annual Picnic--Special Train From Terminal

DAY TO BE SPENT IN BOATING, FISHING, DANCING

There Will Be Baseball Game in Afternoon and Water and Other Athletic Sports for Old and Young

All aboard for Fulton council picnic. A special train leaves promptly at 9 o'clock Saturday morning, June 5, from Terminal station. The entertainment committee, after looking over the most desirable places near Atlanta for a day's outing, unanimously decided upon Jester's Old Mill. A more delightful place could not have been selected. The invitations out read "Boating, fishing, bathing, baseball, dancing, big dinner and lots of fun at Jester's Old Mill." So these attractions will undoubtedly draw practically the entire membership of Fulton council, their families and invited guests.
Be on time. The tickets read to Jester's Crossing, where suitable conveyances will meet special train to convey the picnicers over to the mill, a short distance of an mile. The schedule provides for an early return to the city.

DEPLORES RESIGNATIONOF DR. JOHN E. WHITE*Congregation of Second Baptist Church Adopts Resolution Sunday Morning

Following the regular service Sunday morning at the Second Baptist church, resolutions deploring the resignation of Dr. John E. White, as pastor, and the severance of relations which had grown so pleasant during an intimacy of the past fifteen years, were read to the congregation and unanimously adopted.

Dr. White, the resolutions declared, had measured up admirably to the highest standard of the Baptist denomination and the Christian worker and in his leaving the church felt the loss, not only of an inspiring preacher but a large-hearted, sympathetic friend.

The resolutions were read by Judge P. D. Evans.

Pupils and teachers of the Bible school of the Second Baptist church, whose pastor, Dr. John E. White, announced his resignation some days ago, Sunday adopted resolutions of abiding love for Dr. White and regret at his resignation.

The resolution congratulates the members of the church of Anderson, S. C., to which Dr. White goes, for securing so able a man and wishes Dr. White Godspeed in his new pastorate.

PATROLMEN ARE PRAISED FOR MERITORIOUS WORKByron, Benson and Morgan Lauded for Capturing Negro After Battle

In future when patrolmen distinguish themselves by some meritorious act the police captain on duty is expected to mention the act in his report, if it is brought to his attention.

Captain Mayo inaugurated this custom in his daily report Sunday morning, when he praised the conduct of Patrolmen Byron, Benson and Morgan, stationed near the Terminal station, in capturing Charlie Clayton, colored, twenty-one years old, 43 Markham street, when, it is alleged, he broke into J. F. Hunter's saloon, 18 South Forsyth street Saturday night.

An exciting battle in the darkness ensued between the patrolmen and the negro before the latter was captured.

AMERICA UNDERSTANDSFRANCE BETTER, HE SAYS*Nation Gained Great Moral Victory in U. S., Deputy Barres Declares

(By Associated Press.)

PARIS, May 31.—"What the Americans think of us," is the title of a long and appreciative article by Deputy Maurice Barres, a member of the French academy, published in a morning paper. He points out that America, by the great European crisis, has been brought to a deeper understanding of the greatness of France.

"We have gained in the United States," says M. Barres, "a great moral victory—a victory solid and assured and permanent in its effects. Even in that California, so far away and so young, where all are hushed with a great expectation, we have convinced the most indifferent."

SHIP FROM MEXICO IS SEIZED AT MOBILE

(By Associated Press.)

MOBILE, Ala., May 31.—The steamer A. A. Raven, from Progreso, Mexico, with a cargo of 5,000 bales of sisal, on her arrival here last night was seized by officials of the customs department of the United States for violation of the shipping laws by coming into an American port from a foreign port on coastwise papers.

The Raven left New York several weeks ago and put into Key West, Fla., for orders. While at the latter port, Captain Becker, while at Key West, it is alleged, failed to change his papers and proceeded on his coastwise papers. An appeal will be made by the steamship owners to the treasury department for a release of the vessel.

NEGRO WHO SHOT WHITE YOUTH SAVED FROM MOBPosse Tries to Lynch Charlie Allen Who Wounded Alford Calder Near Waycross

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

WAYCROSS, Ga., May 31.—Rushing an automobile over a circuitous route, Sheriff J. W. Pittman Sunday saved Charlie Allen, a negro, from a posse of over one hundred infuriated citizens in the Huxkin district, who wanted to handle the negro for shooting Alford Calder, 19 years old, son of J. W. Calder.

The young man was attacked and probably fatally shot Sunday while going from Huxkin to Olive to attend the marriage of his sister. The negro borrowed Calder's pistol and then told him it was time to die and fired. The shots were fired at such close range that the neck of the youth was powder burned. The negro was caught after a hunt of several hours.

EFFINGHAM VETERANS DRAW PENSION MONEY

SPRINGFIELD, Ga., May 31.—The hearts of the veterans and their widows in Effingham county have been made glad by Ordinary A. B. Kieffer, who has been paying over the state's money to the survivors of the Civil war.

Ordinary Kieffer inaugurated a new way to get the checks to the veterans. He made rounds over the county similar to the tax collector, going to Guyton, Egypt, Rincon and other points in Effingham. Those entitled to receive checks had been previously notified of the ordinary's itinerary and were therefore saved a trip to Springfield.

DR. LEDBETTER WILL INSPECT HIGH SCHOOL

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) GUYTON, Ga., May 31.—Rev. C. M. Ledbetter, pastor of the Methodist church, has been appointed by Governor Slaton to inspect the school for mutes at Cave Spring in north Georgia. The appointment was made a few days ago. Rev. Mr. Ledbetter will leave in about ten days to make an inspection of the school with the aid of the president of the institution. He will then report the result of his visit to the governor at Atlanta.

DATE SET FOR HEARING LIQUOR SHIPMENT CASEAlabama Injunction Against Southern Express Co. Will Come Up June 9
